Description:

Dior (Diorella) is a quiet unassuming female. She is easy to handle, well halter trained and could even be used as part of a walking business. She is a true black fleece with the grey allele on top with colour genetics EE aa plus the classic grey gene. This means that by mating to a similar true black or grey male, she will produce a black or grey cria. So matings to a female like her produce a more predictable colour outcome. She is well balanced on a good frame with an extremely bright and soft handling fleece. She could be delivered having been mated (included in the price).

Number of Crias bred from female: 0
