Attributes

Constantine's pedigree has the kind of promise we all want in our working males and he has lived up to this in every way. His dam is a heavy-set Spartacus daughter and his sire is one of the very best fawn males in the UK, unbeaten Fowberry Nobility. Nobility wasn't just unbeaten as a fawn at some of the biggest shows in Europe, his progeny have also gone on to National success and in turn their progeny as well are winning championships.

Constantine's conformation is substantial and particularly correct, while winning Supreme Champion of the BAS National Show in 2017, the International Judge's remarks were: "This male displays the phenotype we aspire to with a very, very bright, highly organised fleece – giving all the indications of fineness, uniformity and density and that is what we found – but most impressive was his length of staple both in class and the championship compared to other males." (Taken from actual filming on the day)

Constantine was an early worker and his progeny has not disappointed: beautiful looking cria; well put together and with well above average fleece characteristics, most notably density and length of staple. His babies have engaging confident natures being very easy to halter train. With these genetics it's no surprise he has already sired multiple champions.

Constantine consistently produces exceptional progeny by passing on his impressive characteristics, in his first five years working as an elite breeding male between 2019 and 2023 he sired 39 cria, to date 12 of his offspring have gone on to collect multiple championships including two of his sons winning Champion & Reserve Champion Fawn Male at the 2024 BAS National Halter Show.
