Description:

Shanahan has a solid bone structure and great head shape true to huacaya phenotype, together with a very easy temperament to manage.

Shanahan started his first season in 2016 having his first cria in 2017. So far he has produced some striking progeny including a beautiful grey female. Shanahan currently has produced seven females and one male. In 2019 he is expecting five cria.
Shanahan has a beautifully fine, light fawn fleece. Shanahan was last sheared 2nd May 2018 and his blanket weight an impressive 5.45kgs. This really shows the density of his fleece, paired with a great low micron count of 24.00 highlighting his fineness. These attributes to his fleece make Shanahan a fantastic stud, and he is great paired with those females that have a high micron count, to help provide their cria with finer fleece.
